

Viewing Urban Violence through the Lens of Trauma: A PUBLIC HEALTH APPROACH TO HEALING

Ted Corbin, MD, MPP and John A. Rich, MD, MPH

Wednesday, March 25th, 2015 – 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Bryn Mawr College | Thomas Great Hall

REGISTRATION

R.S.V.P. by calling 610-520-2605 or online at:
[http://www.brynmawr.edu/
childandfamily/events.html](http://www.brynmawr.edu/childandfamily/events.html)

CONTINUING EDUCATION CREDITS

This lecture will include 2 Continuing Education Units
(CEUs) for licensed social workers. An Application for credit and a $20 processing fee will be due at the event.

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

This presentation will examine a public health approach to trauma and trauma informed care. Drs. Ted Corbin and John Rich will provide a theoretical overview of trauma informed care and describe the role of trauma informed care in their work with young people who have been victims of intentional injury and violence in an urban setting. This evening's presentation will focus on a specific program, "Healing Hurt People, which is an intervention strategy that focuses on urban violence and victims of intentional injury through a trauma lens. "Healing Hurt People" is the cornerstone program of the Center for Nonviolence and Social Justice.

Ted Corbin, MD, MPP, is an Associate Professor in the Department of Emergency Medicine at the Drexel University College of Medicine and Director of Drexel's MD/MPH program. He also serves as the Medical Director of the "Healing Hurt People" program, an emergency department based trauma-informed intervention strategy that identifies victims of intentional injury.

John A. Rich, MD, MPH is a Professor of Health Management and Policy at the Drexel University School of Public Health. He is also the Director of the Center for Nonviolence and Justice at Drexel Dr. Rich's work has focused on issues of urban violence and trauma, health disparities, and on the health of men of color. His book about urban violence, Wrong Place, Wrong Time: Trauma and Violence in the Lives of Young Black Men (The Johns Hopkins University Press, 2009) has drawn critical acclaim.

This lecture is sponsored by

The G. Mildred and A. Foster Scott Charitable Foundation and The Bryn Mawr College Provost's Office

Hosted by the Center for Child and Family Well-being

BRYN MAWR COLLEGE | GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK AND SOCIAL RESEARCH

www.brynmawr.edu/socialwork | 610.520.2600

