

Global Education Motivators Presents:

The Sixteenth Annual United Nations Day 2012

A Better World Through Human Rights

Where: Chestnut Hill College/East Parlor
Philadelphia, PA
When: Monday, October 29, 2012
Time: 9:30AM – 2:00PM
Students: Grades 8-12

Secondary school students will meet at Chestnut Hill College I to learn more about the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and its importance in their lives. They will explore the future they want from a human rights perspective and see the importance of students being part of the solution to having a better world for everyone.

Programme: students will work together on a selected sub theme: (a) Minority Rights and Discrimination (b) Sustainable Development: Water, Waste and Energy, and (c) Human Rights and Democracy. Their work becomes part of the student deliberations during the December 5-7 United Nations Student Conference on Human Rights and individual students may participate as student leaders in NYC or be a general participant on a selected day.

Keynote Speaker (invited): Juan Carlos Brandt/Chief/Advocacy & Special Events
United Nations Department of Public Information

Historical Guest:: William Penn - Bob Gleason (Actor-Historian) will role play being William Penn and share his 17th Century perspective on human rights. He will also be available for photo opportunities.

Cost: $15 per student (includes resources and lunch)

For more information or to register Contact:

Global Education Motivators (GEM)
Chestnut Hill College
9601 Germantown Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19118

Tel: (215) 248-1150
Fax: (215) 248-7056
Email: gem@chc.edu
URL: www.gem-ngo.org